How to Create a Podcast with Your iPhone

Universities and organizations are faced with the challenge of providing information quickly, accompanied by an increasing infrastructure overload. Mobile recording devices are in use at universities around the clock.

Here, we show you how you can still record, edit and share audio files quickly and easily with your mobile phone. If you have an Android device and want to contribute a short tutorial and workflows, please contact Michael or Marc.

This is what the home screen looks like. Press the red button and recording begins.

Click on the black area to open the editor. There, you have editing possibilities.
With a tap you can jump back or rewind with the cursor. Then a button "Replace" appears. With this button you can re-record the recording after the area.

The symbol in the upper right corner (marked yellow) offers you the possibility to shorten the recording altogether.
You can control this with the yellow bar below the recording. With a click on the file name (chapter 1) you can change it at any time.

With the symbol "..." you can edit or continue your recording at any time.
